THE IMPACT OF CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLIES (1978-1995) ON NIGERIAN CONSTITUTIONS AND POLITICAL EVOLUTION
Advisor: Dr. Hashim Gibrill
Dissertation dated July 2010
This dissertation addresses the issues of crafting a constitution for Nigeria that would meet the criteria of being visible, sustainable, and durable for national political unity, social and economic development. Specifically, it focuses on the years 1978 – 1995 during which several high profile systematic, constitution crafting exercises were undertaken. These included the establishment of a Constitution Drafting Committee to craft a constitution, and a Constituent Assembly.
Ultimately, these exercises have proven to be only partially successful. The goal of producing an enduring constitutional framework for Nigerian politics remains elusive.
The two core questions pursued in this dissertation focus on:
Why did the military pursue these constitution crafting activities?
What are the pressing political issues that the constitutional framework will have to manage?
The dissertation pursued these issues through surveys, interviews, a review of government documents and reports, participant observation, and a review of existing
